RICHLANDS.

Last April we began to advertise our town lots, making at that time a number of statements in regard to what we would do. Through the non-completion of the Clinch Valley extension of the Norfolk and Western our railroad facilities at that time were very limited. We had no railroad station and, indeed, one old farmhouse was the total sign of life about the place. Since then the railroad has erected a fine brick and stone freight station, one of the largest on the road, and will shortly erect a fine passenger station, while the Clinch Valley Company has spent, or is under contract to expend, $350,000. A four-story hotel, the finest in Southwest Virginia, is under roof; a handsome iron bridge, of 180 feet span, crosses the Clinch river; two second-class hotels have been built, and a large number of stores are building under contract. The company has erected a handsome three-story building for its offices, and a fine stone bank building is nearing completion. Machinery for the rolling mill is on the grounds, and the track to the coal mines, three miles away, is completed, and coal is now coming out. A steam brick plant, the most complete in Southwest Virginia, is in operation, and a large amount of grading and other work is going on. This work attracts a great deal of attention, while Richlands is merely at the end of a non-completed line. The completion of the Clinch Valley division this fall, and the running of through trains between Washington and Louisville, putting Richlands immediately on a through line, will give an impetus to the prosperity of the town sufficient to throw it ahead of all competitors, and the attention of investors is called to real estate here as giving greater promise than any town in Southwest Virginia.

THE R. & S. RIGHT OF WAY.

The Gas and Water Company's
• Suit for Damages.

The Damages Assessed at $6,500, but the Company Wants $15,000—It Looks Like a Contest Between the N. & W. and R. & S.—No Decision Yet, and the Case Continued to Wednesday.

The Hastings Court consumed the entire day yesterday in hearing the contested case in the Roanoke and Southern condemnation proceedings against the Gas and Water Company.

The appraisers appointed by the court to assess the damage to property by the construction of the Roanoke and Southern railroad in the city limits assessed the damages of the Gas and Water Company at $6,500. The company is unwilling to accept this, but wants $15,000.

The property in question lies along Holliday street, opposite the site set apart for the freight depot, and the proposed line to connect with the Norfolk and Western will run across it.

The Gas and Water Company contests the report of the appraisers on the ground that the amount allowed for damages is insufficient, and that the railroad company has no right to condemn the property, claiming that it is not necessary for the terminal facilities of the road, and claiming that the Norfolk and Western will not allow the connection.

Testimony was introduced proving that no contract had been made between the two railroad companies to make the connection. The contract between the Roanoke Development and Guarantee Company and the North Carolina and Virginia Construction Company was read as evidence to prove that the condemnation proceedings were instituted at the instance, or for the benefit, of the Development and Guarantee Company. A large number of witnesses were examined, and although the entire day was taken up, the hearing of testimony has just begun.

The railroad company is represented by Messrs. Ren & Coker, Scott & Dupuy, and Judge A. P. Staples, and the Gas and Water Company by Messrs. Phlegar, Johnson & Berkeley, Messrs. Griffin & Watts, T. W. Miller and Col. Hamsbrough.

The hearing of the case will be re-commenced Wednesday morning.

While there has been no official negotiations in regard to the junction of the Roanoke and Southern with the Norfolk and Western, yet it is currently reported that the Norfolk and Western regards such a junction unfavorably, and may resist it. Parties interested in the Norfolk and Western are largely interested in the Gas and Water Company, and the final outcome of this matter is looked forward to with considerable interest, as it is of considerable consequence to the Roanoke and Southern.

A Times reporter called at the office of General Manager Sands of the Norfolk and Western yesterday and through his chief clerk, Mr. G. W. Ramsey, Mr. Sands said that there had been no official negotiations about the junction of the roads.

On account of the close alliance of the Norfolk and Western and the Gas and Water Company, it is the general belief that a fight is on between the Roanoke and Southern and Norfolk and Western roads, or at least that it is likely to terminate that way.

Brick for the Terry Building.

The Terry Building Company has made a contract for 1,250,000 bricks to be furnished for the new $80,000 building on the corner of Campbell and Jefferson streets. 200,000 of which are to be delivered within the next few weeks, and the remainder by the first of February. The brick will be made by Adams Bros. & Payne, of this city. The work on the building is to be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

Death of Mrs. Haneckel.

Mrs. Haneckel, the wife of Mr. J. E. M. Haneckel, a well-known civil engineer of this city, died yesterday morning of consumption. She was 28 years of age and had been married two years. The funeral services were held last night at 9 o'clock. Her remains will be taken to Richmond, her old home, for burial, on the early morning train.

A Handsome Mirror Broken.

A gentleman was examining a Winchester rifle in the bar of Ormsby's Cafe yesterday, when the piece was accidentally discharged, the ball striking the handsome mirror of the bar, making a large hole in the thick glass and fracturing it considerably. The damage is about $150.

American Scenery.

There is probably not another ten-mile stretch of railroad in the world more varied and majestic in its surroundings than that from Point of Rocks to Harper's Ferry. The Valley of the Potomac narrows, the hills on either side rise to the statefulness of mountains, and the river flows swiftly in ripples and eddies. Just below the ferry, the river, increased by the Shenandoah's volume, becomes a torrent. On the opposite side is Loudon Heights, a sentinel of the Blue Ridge, dark and frowning. Beyond Virginia and into West Virginia, the base of the two States and ending in the swift flowing stream which separates them, Bolivar Heights start abruptly up with Harper's Ferry at their feet. The train, still upon the opposite side, winds beneath Maryland Heights, thirteen hundred feet high. The meeting of these three mighty forest crowned masses, the two rivers becoming but one, the long vista up the Potomac, in the foreground the steel bridge and behind it John Brown's Fort and the old fashioned houses of the town, the ruins of the arsenal, whose tall chimneys alone remain, Jefferson's Rock high on the heights, and over all a September sky—expression fails the theme.

The scene described above can be viewed from the windows of the Vestibule Trains running between the great cities of the east and west via Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. All B. & O. trains run via Washington.
